AN AGILE burglar, according to C. Melkin Arslanian (above), forced his way into his tree-top home (right) in West Orange, N. J., and stole several books, two alarm clocks and a deer skin. Rug dealer Arslanian, who has lived in his exclusive abode for a good number of years, told police that the intruder probably made his way up a ladder that rests at the foot of the tree while he is away. THE MARSHALL REPORT

It lay within the power of Secretary of State Marshall to make one of history's memorable addresses on the occasion of his return from Moscow.

All he needed to have done was to have started where he stopped. He carefully worked his way to the one big question of the times—and then quit.

The concluding words of General Marshall were:

"The state of the world today and the position of the United States make mandatory, in my opinion, a unity of action on the part of the American people. It is for that reason that I have gone into such lengthy detail in reporting my views on the conference."

"Unity of action?" What does this mean? Action to what purpose? Action in what field? And unity of what kind, at what price, in whose hands?

A thousand questions rise at the words. A definition of the type of action in General Marshall's mind, and of the manner in which he believes united support for it should be obtained, would be invaluable as a guide for the American public in deciding on the current issues.

Certainly it would have been infinitely more helpful than the Secretary's guarded rehash of already-known differences which developed during the Moscow conferences.

In his discussions of these matters, which occupied the whole of his report, General Marshall's hands were tied by history. He had to walk a chalk-line. Why? Because at every stage of his report he was discussing the results of the blunders, breakdowns and deals of two distinguished friends of his—named Roosevelt and Truman.

For the most obvious reasons, General Marshall did not dare say so—although only by such candor can the American people ever be brought to a clear understanding of the nature of our present problems. These problems are here because past mistakes have caught up with us.

Many of the issues he discussed are matters which everyone had assumed would, long before this, be in the hands of an impartial and judicious branch of the United Nations. Why aren't they there? Why are General Marshall and President Truman going on the assumption that Uncle Sam has personally to take over the police job of settling all the minor squabbles of Eastern Europe and the rest of the globe?

GROUP TO BACK BILL TO PROVIDE SCHOOL EXPANSION

Student-Sponsored Meeting At S. Langhorne Favors Building Program

TOWNSEND PRESIDES

Plan Complete Study of The Building Needs For Entire Area

SOUTH LANGHORNE, Apr. 30—At a student-sponsored public meeting held in the South Langhorne Casino last evening, a proposal was made that "the community back Senate Bill 581 which proposes to establish a state authority for financing the construction of school buildings throughout the state."

The session was attended not only by students, but by faculty members of the schools in the Langhorne area, parents, school directors, and others. Use of the Casino was provided by Mr. Marks, the manager.

The session was called to consider more adequate building facilities for pupils in elementary and secondary schools in the Langhorne area. The proposal made to back Senate Bill 581 was made by Thomas Coe, cashier of Langhorne bank.

The group also proposed that a more complete study be made of building needs in this area, and that at a future meeting these facts be placed before the public.

Response of the community to the suggestion was considered "gratifying" by those sponsoring the meeting. A. Paul Townsend, president of Langhorne Lions Club, presided.

The meeting was opened by Miss Jean Williams, a junior at Langhorne-Middletown high school, and chairman of the student committee. Miss Williams explained the reason for calling the meeting, she mentioning that pupils during the past winter, finding high school quarters cramped, and with no auditorium in which to assemble for recreation or other sessions, had suggested calling such a meeting as that last night to discuss plans for school expansion.

Miss Williams in turn introduced the presiding officer, A. Paul Townsend. Among the speakers were: Kenneth Conly, secretary of Langhorne-Middletown school board; Philip G. Lewis, secretary of the joint board for the high school; John A. Crowley, secretary of Bucks County Lincoln Highway Kiwanis Club; Charles Tellow, president of Parkland Fire Co.; Mrs. Henry Ridge, president-elect of Langhorne Sorosis; Thomas Coe, Mrs. Walter Syger, Ralph McCormick, Walter Miller.

There was, likewise, discussion from the floor by various residents. Question was raised as to why building projects are not underway in the district, a bond issue having been passed by electors to provide for additions. Some in attendance informed that it has been difficult to secure materials, also satisfactory prices.

Commenting on the session today Dr. Oliver Heckman, superintendent of Langhorne-Middletown schools stated: "The discussion was marked by tolerance and good judgment, and also by consideration for achievements already made by the board. We feel the students also learned much of the 'way of democracy' through this meeting."

KEEP THEM LOCKED UP

Governor Dewey may or may not have been well advised to veto a bill providing for the confinement of sexual psychopaths until they are no longer a danger to society. Some of the machinery it would have set up is open to question.

But it is obvious that existing laws do not adequately protect the public against fiends of this type, and the solution now favored by outstanding experts in the field is along the general lines indicated in the New York bill.

All too frequently one reads with horror of callous murderers committed in cold blood against innocent women or children as the by-product of a criminal assault. It usually turns out, in such cases, that the criminal had been arrested several times for "minor" sex abnormalities. He soon went free again—because the charges were dropped, a well-meaning judge gave him a suspended sentence, he was paroled for good behavior, or was simply freed after serving his sentence.

Authorities in the field propose that all persons arrested for abnormal offenses be turned over to experts for examination before they are brought to trial. If they are found to be psychopaths, they should be locked up until, on re-examination by experts, they are found to be cured.

This handling of the problem would not threaten the liberty of any citizen guilty of nothing more than over-enthusiastic concupiscence, as Mr. Dewey seemed to fear. It is aimed at dangerously abnormal offenders only, who are too warped to be amenable to ordinary penal methods.

It would perhaps arouse a storm of opposition, however, since sex psychopaths, when they first show abnormality, are of tender years, and their defenders see nothing but cruelty in the stitch in time which, in addition to protecting the public, may well save them from the gallows.

ON PYTHON-MEETING

Few persons in this country are eager to meet a python. But that may be because they don't know how to behave. If so, they'll be interested to hear that Dr. Malcolm Smith of the British Museum says you meet a python with a bath towel.

"Take a bath towel and wrap it several times around the left hand so as to protect it completely," he says. "Push this into the snake's face."

That doesn't seem very polite, but if it's what the python likes, okay. It is, says Dr. Smith, the simple approach. He doesn't explain how to meet a python the hard way. Neither does he tell a fellow what to do with his right hand.

After you've used the simple approach, he adds, the python's body will be wound about yours, bath towel or no bath towel. But that is of no consequence, really, unless the python happens to be more than 12 feet long.

If it is, you'd better use a more complicated approach—or a simple retreat. All who want to meet a python raise their hands.

THE MARSHALL REPORT

There are two reasons why this subject is being garbled. One is that the United Nations' program, to date, is a complete failure. And the other is the cause of its being a failure—the fact that the late President Roosevelt was busier appeasing Stalin, when they met at Yalta, than in trying to create a workable plan of peace.

Of course General Marshall can't talk understandably about current problems if he is going to pretend that the bogging down of the United Nations plan was just one of those unfortunate things which, like the weather, couldn't be controlled or prevented.

To know how to make a workable plan for peace, we need to know what is wrong with the one we have; and to know what is wrong with it, we have to know who made what mistakes when—and that's just the subject which neither General Marshall nor President Truman is willing to go into.

But General Marshall had a still more immediate handicap. President Roosevelt is dead; and so are most of his ideology and program, so far as the White House is concerned. The Secretary might have been willing, under sufficient pressure, to admit that his one-time friend, the late President, made some unfortunate decisions.

But with President Truman, the situation is different. He is still President; he's General Marshall's boss. Moreover, he's about to run for re-election, and of course General Marshall wants to see him win.

So the Secretary has to walk on eggs when he refers to any of the present President's blunders.

And this is especially unfortunate, because the immediate purpose of the Moscow meeting, according to General Marshall's own account, was trying to correct mistakes which President Truman participated in.

Why was the Moscow meeting held? For many reasons, of course—to talk over treaties and boundaries and coal-sealing wax and kings.

But what was the big reason? To try to remedy the blunders of the Potsdam Agreement.

And who was it dragged us into that unhappy pact? None other than President Truman. He plunged into that conference at a moment when he was the merest tyro in international politics. He went to Europe hypnotized by the Morgenthau "tough-peace" policy for post-war Germany. With his rash, "off the cuff" decisions, he committed us to a Carthaginian peace for Europe. He agreed to let the Russians walk off with everything movable out of German industries; apparently agreed to Russia collecting vast reparations; certainly agreed that Germany would be confined to a "light-industry" and agricultural economy; and wound up accepting an impossible four-way split of occupied Germany which hadn't a ghost of a show of working.

The Moscow meeting was called to try to rehash this parade of blunders and make sense of them. Here we come to another handicap which General Marshall was under. Who is the only man who has blueprinted what's wrong with Germany and Europe, and told what ought to be done to put them back on their feet?

None other than that arch-enemy and ancient whipping-boy of the New Dealers—ex-President Hoover.

The Hoover report on Germany was unanswerable. General Marshall didn't even try to answer it. He accepted it as gospel—rewrote portions of it and presented them, without credit, as though they were just ideas which had come to him.

Now, of course, all this left him in an awkward spot. This great friend of Democratic Presidents couldn't go to the American people and say: "The only competent analysis of the needs of Europe is that presented by a former Republican President, and the only reason I can't go ahead and carry it out is that a couple of Democratic Presidents, one of whom happens to be my boss, have tied my hands with a series of past mistakes."

But what does the Secretary recommend we do? Nothing specific; merely that we have "unity of action." Does that mean get ready to fight Russia as soon as possible? Does it mean that we are going to re-create an army and re-occupy Europe, so that things can be done the way we want? Does it mean that the idea of a United Nations program is to be wholly forgotten?

And what about the "unity"? Is this merely a dig at Wallace? Or does it mean political unity—in the sense of wiping out the two-party system and hearing only one side of public questions? Is it a means of serving notice that critics of the Secretary and the President are "disloyal" and, in time of emergency, dangerously so?

No, the Secretary brought up, almost as a postscript, a subject of far greater importance than any which he discussed. Let's coax him for the rest of the story.

Need "Leaders"

"A mother who felt that her daughter should have the benefit of Brownie Scouting as had her son of Cub Scouting, and, finding no troop already organized or in prospect in Andalusia, organized a troop which was duly registered May 6, 1946.

"The past year shows a record of very good attendance, a waiting list for membership, and enthusiastic participation in all activities.

"As the time draws close to re-register Troop I this mother has made plans, as parents should, to work with the newly organized intermediate troop to which her daughter is now old enough to 'fly up.' Being employed, she will not have time for both troops.

"A poll of all people who should be personally interested in our Brownies has resulted in finding a number of people who have promised active help, but no one who is willing to register with the troop for the 1947 year.

"We need a leader and an assistant leader. If you are 21 years of age or older and are interested in these seven to 16-year-old girls, will you call Cornwells 6124-J between three and 3:30, Monday through Friday, or Cornwells 6154-J in the evening?

A covered dish luncheon will be conducted on May 15th at 12:30 p. m. Refreshments were served. Hostesses for the evening were: Mrs. David Dyer, Mrs. William Ervin, Robert Dapp and Mrs. Harry Nett.

EARN UNIFORM MONEY

Group 5, of Junior Catholic Lighters of America held a "picnic" party on Friday at the home of Joan Dougherty. Eleven prizes were awarded. To Ellanna Knuth a prize was given. First prize was Rita Delaney; second, Riley Tosti. Refreshments were served to 35. The proceeds from the party will be used toward uniforms.

SUNDAY DINNER Suggestions

ASPARAGUS, a vegetable native to Europe, was a favorite of ancient Romans. Once a vegetable considered exclusively for the ill-to-do, the asparagus, through extension of cultivation, has now brought within the reach of anyone.

In this country, only the spears tips are eaten, but in other parts of the world the seeds are used for beverage similar to coffee and mented spirits are made from a berries.

The asparagus, a seasonal vegetable, is now available all year and. Through the employment of careful canning it has become fully popular in that state as when freshly cut. The vegetable is found in two principal market divisions, white and green. There is little difference save in color although the white is usually of larger size.

According to the A & P Service Home-Makers, fresh asparagus could be eaten as soon after gathering as possible, for it quickly loses its delicate flavor.

In cooking, the best method is to and the bunch of spears on end in water, leaving about an inch of the spears above the water. In this way it is possible to cook the spears thoroughly without spoiling the tips.

Fresh asparagus is now on the market and when served cooked as vegetable, or included in a salad makes a welcome addition to any meal.

For a Sunday dinner, try chicken liver soup to begin a meal that includes roast chicken and dressing, mashed potatoes, fresh asparagus, dressing, vegetable salad, rolls, and cake with fruit sauce and overage.

Meet the men whose hospital bills are $8,000,000 a year!

These men (and one charming lady) are the Directors of the Philadelphia Blue Cross Plan. They serve without pay because they believe that this voluntary, non-profit hospitalization plan is good for everybody!

These men believe, too, that membership in the Blue Cross is the best possible buy for your money—if you want to avoid expensive hospital bills which are more costly now than ever. This in turn makes Blue Cross worth more now than ever before!

These men are doctors, hospital administrators, and business people. They represent you and me and you. You know them—some personally, all by reputation.

These are the men who watch over your Blue Cross . . . the Philadelphia Blue Cross Plan which has paid 400,000 hospital bills in eight years and to which 1,100,000 persons in this area belong voluntarily and gladly!

Why?

Because for only a few cents a day—Blue Cross pays your hospital bills.

The master, Harold Yoder, spoke on the question, "Why Should Ritualism be a Part of the Grange Program?" The Grange, he said, is founded upon its ritual, and it is the ritualistic work that makes the Grange different from any other farm organization.

Isaac S. Gross, who also commented upon the questions, said he feels that Granges that have failed have neglected the ritualistic part of the program. The lecturer, Mrs. Floyd Prilling, conducted a quiz on ritualism.

Raymond D. Bitzer, of Buckingham Pike, was elected president of the eastern Pennsylvania chapter of The American Society of Sanitary Engineering at the charter meeting in Philadelphia last week.

Talks were given during the meeting by Dr. Alfred LaBocetta, superintendent of the Philadelphia Hospital for Contagious Diseases, on "Polio," and by Donald V. Hook, Allentown attorney.

The A. S. S. E. objectives as outlined by the new chapter president are "Polio, Sanitation Safety and Health."

"Meet Your Neighbor" Party Is Scheduled for May 30th

The Women's Auxiliary of Fleetwing Estates Civic Association held its monthly meeting Monday evening at the home of Mrs. Clyde Kleese. The by-laws of the organization, modeled on those of the men's organization, were approved. Committee chairman were then chosen as follows: Ways and means, Mrs. William Dahl; publicity, Mrs. Edward Rauss; entertainment, Mrs. William Eckstein; public service and membership committees were chosen but chairmen not yet selected.

The idea of a "Meet Your Neighbor" party, to be held on Memorial Day, was suggested by Mrs. Eckstein, and approved. Each of those present offered to help at the party in some way. The affair, to which every resident in the "Estates" will be invited, is to be held outside the Eckstein home, and is to be in the nature of a picnic, neighbors taking lunches but obtaining beverages at the party. A meeting of the entertainment committee will be held next week to work out further details.

LANGHORNE WINS AT BENSLEM BY A SINGLE RUN

Redskins Cop Third League
Victory of Present
Season

FINAL SCORE IS 3 TO 2

Owls Stage Rally in Final
Frame, Netting Two Runs

CORNWELLS HEIGHTS, Apr. 30.—The Langhorne Redskins copped their third straight win of the Lower Bucks County League yesterday afternoon, nosing out the Benslem Owls, 3-2, on the latter's diamond.

"Inky" Schneider was on the mound for the Langhorne team. Ashton started the rally with a double to left. Kleha hit to short, who fumbled, Ashton going to third. Kleha went to second unassisted. Haggerty scored both runners with a single. Tono also hit safely, Haggerty stopping at second. With no one out, Haggerty made a foolish try to steal third and was nipped, Lukens to W. Fizzano. Trapp hit to Robinson, who tossed to Schneider got the runner at first. DeMittio was the third out.

Schneider had 12 strikeouts to his credit, while Deitch struck out four. Hansen, who relieved Deitch in the sixth, had a strikeout to his credit.

FIFTH WARD NINE LOSES TO ST. ANN'S

St. Ann's A. A., defending champions of the Bristol Suburban League, made the Fifth Ward Sporting Club feel the sting of its bats last night as it walloped the Warders, 10-4, last evening on the Third Ward field before a large crowd.

Twelve hits sang out from the St. Ann's bats and included in these were three triples and home runs from the bats of "Rabbit" Palumbo and "Chick" Cialella. Palumbo also had a triple, single and walk for his night's work at the plate.

"Danny" Keegan hurled for the winners and gave up six hits. He would have had an easier time, but in the first, R. Calone caught hold of one of his curves and sent a tremendous drive over the centerfielder's head for a home run. It was the longest hit of the season thus far, and two runners were on base at the time. Keegan struck out 12 batters in five innings.

"Reds" Liberatore was chalked up with the defeat, he going the route for the Warders.

Pick-a-Back Ball

THIS REMARKABLE action photo was made during the game between the Cincinnati Reds and the Chicago Cubs at Chicago. Catcher Ray Lamanno of the Reds slid under 2nd baseman Johnson of the Cubs, who had received the ball from first base and tried for an unsuccessful double play. The result looks like a pick-a-back ride. (International)

"Steve" Davidock, State Trooper from the Langhorne barracks, hurled the Langhorne Legion to a 4-1 victory over the Badenhausen team last evening on the Township field.

In setting down the Badenhausen lads, Davidock allowed but two hits, both coming in the second inning, a triple by Paul and double by Bowman. He was aided by errorless support.

The losing moundman was Paul Leighton who fanned nine batters and allowed four hits. "Walt" Rothenschuck smacked one of Leighton's pitches for a home run in the fifth. Errors and two hits gave the Langhorne boys a trio of markers in the third.

HUSBAND RESPONSIBLE

NEW YORK (INS)—In Utah a husband is responsible for every crime, short of murder, committed by his wife while in his presence, according to The American Magazine.

From where I sit... by Joe Marsh

We Got to the Fish Fry
After All

That community fish fry was sure a great success. There were plenty of appetizing extras, and Will Dudley did a right wonderful job of frying the fish—soft and flaky inside—brown and crisp around the edges.

But we didn't get to go. The missus was tired after working in the yard, and we just didn't want to leave her.

Then how did we know the fish was so good? Because the folks didn't forget us. They sent Skippy Henderson over with two steaming covered plates of fish, and a pitcher of cool, sparkling beer. And we finished them off in front of our own fire.

From where I sit, that's one of the things that makes our town so nice a place to live in: a spirit of share and share alike. That plate of fish and glass of beer weren't just great eating, they were symbols of the thoughtfulness that makes for better living!

TRUCK IN KENSINGTON
KILLS 5-YEAR-OLD BOY
William [redacted], 5, was killed by a truck late yesterday while playing in the street a few doors from his home. [redacted] employed by a produce merchant, took the boy to Episcopal Hospital, then surrendered to police. He said he did not see the boy in the street. His father, William, was the son of Mr. and Mrs. [redacted] a Palmyra (N. J.) hosiery mill.

100 FEET FROM HOME...

Billy is happily skating... he bends down to tighten his skate straps... playmates scream... brakes screech... the car stops, but not in time. Billy is dead—just 100 feet from home.

Why must 191 Billies—15 years of age and under—needlessly die every year? And 583 older pedestrians are killed every year in traffic accidents—bringing the gory total to 774 lives snuffed out on Pennsylvania's streets and highways. Why? Because we forget the rules of common courtesy and consideration. We forget to act "safely."

We are too apt to blame the driver of the car every time a pedestrian fatality occurs. Actually—the pedestrian often is as much at fault as the driver.

Parents should caution children about playing in the streets. Drivers should be doubly on the alert while driving where children play. In the heat of a game—children will run into the street after a bouncing ball heedless of traffic. The driver has to think for himself—and the children, too. Children should be taught to give a car the right of way where there are no traffic signals.

These safety rules apply to children and adults! Obey traffic signals while walking and bicycling. Look both ways before crossing a street or road. Don't jaywalk. Walk against traffic on rural roads. Never dart out into the highway from between parked cars.

If the pedestrian shoulders his part of safety responsibility both in his personal walking habits and by teaching his children good safety habits—then our little and big Billies will be saved.

BRISTOL LEGION REGISTERS VICTORY

Six runs in the first inning aided the Bristol Legion to register its first win of the season last evening as it topped the Fur Workers Union, 11-2, on the Memorial Park grounds.

Before the game, the Legion Cadets accompanied the team to the field.

The Fur Workers played listless ball after the Legionnaires had taken the lead and never were in the ball game.

The Unions made but three hits off "Eddie" Euschnko who was master from the start. Cornelius Chickletti and Glenn Miller pitched for the losers with Chickletti being shelled from the peak in the first.
